

5 Killed and Engine Derailed by Grade Crossing Crash

A Cadillac touring car with five passengers in it ran directly in front of the fast east bound Omaha to Chicago Rock Island flier on the route 51 grade crossing a mile and a half east of Mokena Sunday night about 8:20 o'clock and resulted in the instant death of the five persons and the derailment of the engine of the train.

The train was running about 50 to 60 miles an hour and the force of the impact was so great that the pilot of the engine was doubled under the engine causing it to raise up the locomotive and derailed the front set of pony trucks which rode the ties for nearly 2000 feet before the train could be brought to a stop. It is a great wonder that the entire train was not wrecked.

The bodies of two women were found about fifty feet from the demolished automobile which had been hurled about 200 feet east of the crossing into a ditch. A few feet further on near a fence the body of a man was found while the body of another man was found near the track with a fractured skull. The body of a seven year old boy with his head crushed was found near the bodies of the women.

Dr. E. G. MacMahon of Mokena was summoned and pronounced the victims dead. Coroner Chamberlain of Joliet was notified and removed the bodies to a Joliet mortuary. The identity of the victims was revealed by papers and cards found on the bodies by the coroner. They were: Bud Zurowsky, about 27 years old, 4615 Wentworth avenue, Chicago, owner and presumably driver of the automobile.

Arafon Funick, 40 years old, 5248 South Artesian avenue, Chicago.

Mrs. Anna Funick, his wife. Joseph Funick, seven years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Funick. Rose Severowski, 5428 South Artesian avenue, Chicago, a sister of Mrs. Funick.

The bodies were not badly mutilated but were badly broken.

Edward Schenkel of Mokena was driving toward home on route 51 when the ill fated Cadillac ran by him at a speed of nearly 40 miles an hour and kept on going until it hit the train. The train whistled for the crossing and was clearly visible for a long way off so it will remain a mystery why these people drove directly in front of the on rushing train. The victims were Lithuanians. The train was delayed for over an hour before the derailed engine was placed on the rails again.

EARLY PAVING OF WOLF ROAD BEING SOUGHT

With the Will County bond issue road building program under way, the Wolf Road boosters of Mokena are active in trying to get the highway mentioned paved from the Cook and Will county line to the Lincoln highway this summer. It is understood that this road may be built if the Frankfort township officials assist the hard road committee in securing the right of way. Supervisor Wm. Kampe says he will do all in his power to co-operate with the county committee in this matter.

L. G. Bruder, chairman of the Mokena Hard Road and Development Association has written the following letter to Fred A. Francis, the chairman of the Will County Hard Road Bond Issue committee:

"We note from the Herald-News of April 11th that surveys are being made of roads covered by the $1,750,000 bond issue and that the first roads to be surveyed are Richard Street and East Washington St.

"We wish to inquire when the survey will be made on Wolf Road from the Cook and Will County line to the Lincoln Highway.

"You realize that Mokena is the only incorporated village located in Chicago suburban territory that is not connected with the bond issue routes and that Mokena needs a connection with the state bond issue roads and that the gap from the Cook and Will county line on Wolf Road thru Mokena should be paved this summer.

"We will appreciate it very much if you will be kind enough to advise this organization when the survey of Wolf Road will be made."

The Town Doctor

SAYS

MANY TOWNS ARE LIKE SOME MERCHANTS—

They spend much time and money trying to attract new business when they are not getting all there is to get out of the business they already have.

There is, in the advertising business, what is called the "Golden Triangle" of every mercantile establishment. It is that space in front of the store where people who pass can see the store entrance and the windows. It is the vital point in every retail business; for no merchant can sell his wares (excluding mail order and telephone orders) unless the people come into the store. The advertising to reach the area so named is what is called "Point of Purchase" advertising. Its purpose is to stop the passerby which is one big reason for show windows and window displays. Through this medium the merchant attempts to attract attention, then create a desire to enter the store. American people buy by eye—what the eye doesn't see, the heart doesn't fancy.

Towns are exactly like stores in this general respect. If a town got all of the business from the traffic it already has, it is ten to one that it would never have to spend any money for additional business. But as long as there are towns, and the people in them remain human, they will probably continue to go out after more customers when they have not got all there is to be had from the traffic they already have.

Let us take automobile traffic as one angle of revenue or business for a town. Every strange automobile that passes through your city is worth a goodly sum—much more than most people think—but you must stop the car and get the passengers out of it, if you are going to get their business. Twenty percent of those people who tour by motor car are in the market for or can be sold a new location. Every motorist can be made to be the cause for more motorists coming to your town. An analysis of this means of town income shows many surprising facts, chief of which is first, that very few towns recognize the business that can be had from it.

R. I. Will Not Alter Mokena Track Level

For sometime a rumor has been afloat that the Rock Island was planning to change their track level thru Mokena and that the tracks were to be lowered 22 feet thru the village. Alderman August Hentsch stated at the last village board meeting that the Rock Island was going to do this work in 1930 and that an appropriation totaling several millions of dollars had been made by the Rock Island for this work.

In order to verify these reports the News-Bulletin quired the Rock Island officials if this report is true and the Rock Island officials advise that the Rock Island engineering department is contemplating no change in the track level through Mokena, but that a separation of grades has been approved, involving route 51, under the Rock Island tracks east of Mokena. It is understood that this work will be started in the near future.

The White Store is Joliet's outstanding bargain center and J. J. Cohen, the owner, is always on the look out for acquiring new specials and bargains which he passes on to his customers at money saving prices that are always looked forward to by the thrifty buyers of Will County and nearby territory.

Abbreviated Garb Debars Students From Class

The fad of going stockinged to school and of wearing abbreviated dresses bordering on the immoral and of wearing barebacked dresses has been quite prevalent among the girl students of schools in various sections of the United States of late and in most instances the offending students have been debarred from their classes by the teachers until they appeared in more modest garb.

An echo of this fad was heard in the Mokena public school this week. On Monday afternoon several girls students were given a lecture by one of the teachers about impropriety in dress. It appears some girls have been wearing rolled down socks, short dresses above their knees exposing several inches of bare legs, to which the teachers took exception, claiming this kind of attire is very improper. The students were told appear in more modest garb the next day. When the students appeared Tuesday they were debarred from the history class by Miss Clara Goetz, the teacher, and this raised a furore with the parents.

Mrs. Ethel Fisher in a statement to the News-Bulletin says that her daughter Lucile was one of those debarred from the history class and she went to the school and asked Miss Goetz what the trouble was and says the teacher replied that there was only one solution to the problem and that was that all girl students must wear long stockings instead of socks, must wear bloomers that will meet the stockings and dresses that will cover the knees.

Mrs. Fisher questioned the authority of Miss Goetz to say how the girls should dress and took the matter up with the school board officials who advised her that her daughter should dress as per the request of the teacher until the school board can investigate the situation further and the request has been complied with. Mrs. Fisher resents the imputation that her daughter was not properly attired and says she always aims to have her children appear attired respectably.

Tinley Organizes Legion Post

Tinley Park is all set to organize an American Legion Post. A meeting was held at the barber shop of Walter Mancke to talk over organization plans and twenty-two "vets" appeared. A charter will then be applied for.

Tinley Mayor Sells Garage Property

Wm. Funk has sold his property now occupied by C. A. Steinhagen to E. Freberg for $9,250. Mr. Freberg will open a plumbing and heating establishment and show room. Mr. Steinhagen will re-establish his garage in another part of town as soon as he finds a desirable location.

Mokena To Have Cleanup Day

Special attention is called to the fact that all broken glass, etc., is to be placed in boxes or barrels and must not be placed in bags.

J. W. JENNINGS IS ELECTED MAYOR OF ORLAND PARK

The village election at Orland Park Tuesday resulted in a victory for the entire By Petition ticket with the exception of two offices, that of trustee for the short term, and police magistrate. Ralph W. Jennings was elected mayor and E. H. Cooper, Henry Waje, and Wm. Kollman were elected trustees for the full term. Fred E. Uthe was elected trustee for the short term and Sherman S. Knox as police magistrate.

A unique situation developed which made this election a bit out of the ordinary. Three full tickets were in the field, and one candidate ran for president as an independent. For the first time in Orland Park's history there was a ticket composed entirely of women. And this Woman's Ticket made things interesting for the men and kept them in doubt for sometime as to the final result. Ella M. Loebe and the ladies associated with her made an excellent showing and ran neck and neck with the other tickets, being beaten out by smaller margins than were expected.

The vote for the various offices was as follows:

BY PETITION No. 1 For Mayor, R. W. Jennings 106 For village trustees for full term E. H. Cooper . . . 131 Henry Waje . . . 112 W. Kollman . . . 155 For Police Magistrate D. M. Crane . . . 91

WOMAN'S TICKET For Mayor Ella M. Loebe . . . 64 For village trustees full term Nina A. Kay . . . 56

To Place Board Under Observation

BY JOHN T. CLYNE

Stimulated by the results obtained by the few patriots who succeeded in saving the tax payers of Will County a considerable sum of money in connection with the $1,750,000 bond issue, an organization co-operating with the Junior Chamber of Commerce is preparing to place the members of the present Board of Supervisors under observation during the road building campaign now being launched by our county legislators, especially in the letting of contracts and the purchase of material needed in repairing our roads.

That competition should be encouraged in spending money for public improvements is an accepted fact. Such a course is the only safe one for a public officer to pursue. Where such a procedure is followed there is little chance for criticism and nothing to fear on the part of those who are entrusted with conducting the public's business.

There are those who resent even constructive criticism. The opposite of this, however, is shown in the attitude of one of the committee, who, in talking to the writer a few days ago, indicated that he was ready to advocate a settlement with the Bond House and recommend that the present bond issue be placed in the hands of the treasurer and sold only in such quantities and at such a time as the money is needed. Just see what a savings this would mean for the county!

There are a number of shrewd business men on the present board, and it is upon them that criticism will fall whenever there is a let down or a departure from the legal and sensible procedure in transacting the public's business in the county.

Ruth Ludwig INDEPENDENT TICKET No. 1 For Mayor P. E. Steffen . . . 30 PEOPLES TICKET For Mayor Geo. M. Yunker . . . 69 For village trustees full term George J. Cox . . . 98 Herman Kruspe . . . 56 Herman B. Nicolai . . . 70 For village trustee for 1 year Fred E. Uthe . . . 99 BY PETITION TICKET No. 2 For village trustee for 1 year Louis H. Nicolai, Jr. . . . 93 INDEPENDENT TICKET No. 2 For Police Magistrate Sherman S. Knox . . . 150

Outside of the remarkable run made by the Woman's Ticket, the surprising thing about the election was the large vote polled by Wm. Kollman for trustee and Sherman S. Knox for police magistrate. Kollman ran 50 votes ahead of the head of his ticket and the vote for Knox was even more remarkable. Running as an independent Judge Knox not only was re-elected but succeeded in breaking the slate and winning out by nearly two to one.

Another feature of this election was the presence of women on the election board. Mrs. Jessie Greer as judge of election and Miss Hattie Austin as clerk, together with Louis Raschke and Ray Heald as judges and Rev. Paul Sanders as the other clerk, constituted the board and worked very efficiently and smoothly together.

The entire election was run off without any fuss or trouble of any kind and the losers congratulated the winners and everything was well.

TINLEY P. T. A. ELECTS OFFICERS

BY MRS. HILDING ANDERSON

The election of officers of the Tinley Park Parent-Teachers Association was a subject of keen interest at the regular monthly meeting April 5th with the following results: Mrs. Florence Anderson, Pres. Mrs. Marie Gotham, Vice-Pres. Mrs. Leila Moss, Secretary Mrs. Alice Anderson, Treasurer. Mrs. Trudie Swisher has served the organization as president for the past two years and it is with reluctance her many friends see her leave this office which she has filled so efficiently, at all times maintaining the high ideals of the organization.

Now, a few words from our retiring president:

"It is with mingled satisfaction and regret that I look back upon the work of the past two years. Satisfaction in the many things we have accomplished and regret that we could not embrace briefer ones. Our community is growing and our community spirit should reach out bravely toward greater accomplishments during the years to come. As president of the Tinley Park Parent Teacher Association I have made a great effort to hold fast to the high standards set forth by the Illinois Congress. As an organization we have accomplished many things, but we must surge onward, for there is much to be done. Let me give you a brief outline of our achievement during the past two years:

"Children's playground slide; $50 for library books; platform used for stage; baseball equipment; $20 school beautiful committee; purchased, repaired and tuned piano; $10 Dr. Hite, speaker; $5 Mr. Yarrow, speaker; volley ball equipment flags, poles and stands; $5 parents

DR. CALDWELL'S THREE RULES

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not habit forming.

The doctor never did approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Get a bottle today, at any drugstore and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open. For a free trial bottle, just write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. Tree for Every Baby
As an investment for their children, 11 men of Cooperstown, N. Y., are foresting a tract to be called the "Forest of a Dozen Dads." In southern Italy, fathers plant a row of trees for each of their girls when they are babies. By the time the girls grow up the trees are big enough to cut and sell. The money goes into the girl's dowry. The result is more girl babies and more trees, ad infinitum.—Capper's Weekly.

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Representative Elbert Waller, Tamaroa, has introduced a bill which will increase the school distributive fund to $13,000,000. Ever since the free school system was established there has been such a fund and it is now $8,000,000, which is far less than many of the other states have in such a fund. This is for the purpose of equalizing the school tax and helping school districts which cannot raise sufficient funds even though they levy the limit. Mr. Waller's argument is that the education of children is not only a local problem but that it is also a statewide problem. This is House Bill 201 and is set for hearing April 17.

Esperanto by Radio

A recommendation that transmitting stations broadcast communications in the Esperanto language within the limits of their possibilities was a feature of a meeting at Lausanne, Switzerland, of the International Broadcasting union. A survey showed that 168 stations in Europe, Asia and the United States send out messages in Esperanto. The station at Geneva makes weekly broadcasts in this language.

Sleeping Soundly

What is meant by "sleeping soundly"? Studies made by the Woman's Home Companion show that a healthy college student moves during his sleeping hours on an average of once every ten minutes. To awaken and turn over for a new position is entirely normal and conducive to the best rest.

RECORD VOTE AT ORLAND SCHOOL ELECTION

The election for school director for District 135 Orland Park resulted in a record vote being cast. Dr. Sherman S. Knox, who has been secretary of the board for the last 3 years, was re-elected by a very pleasing complimentary vote, practically without any opposition. Dr. Knox received 82 votes, the largest vote ever recorded for a candidate for director in this district. Mrs. Louis Arnold, Jr., received 3 votes and Wm. Kollman and Peter Ott, one vote each.

M. E. GUILD TO HAVE POT LUCK DINNER

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies Guild of the Orland M. E. church will be held Thursday, April 25th at the home of Mrs. Ben Hauss with Mrs. Ben Hauss, Mrs. Ralph Hauss and Mrs. Sherman S. Knox as hostesses. The regular business of the meeting will start at 10 o'clock a. m. and everyone is urged to come early.

The Orland Park Infant Welfare Clinic conducted under the auspices of the Orland Park P. T. A. is taking its place as one of the big things in our community. At the monthly clinic held April 10th in the Orland Park School Auditorium, seventeen babies were examined. During the 10 months that the clinic has been held, 95 infants have been examined and the registration shows 52 names. This work is under the supervision of a committee consisting of Mrs. Geo. E. Gee, Jr., as chairman, Mrs. Charles Mullen, Mrs. Harry Heiting and Mrs. J. M. Mitchell. Dr. Jezidak of Blue Island is the physician in charge and Miss Irene O'Connor R. N. of the County Health Service has general supervision. Mothers from all the surrounding community are urged to bring their children (under six years) to the next clinic which will be held May 8th from 10 to 12 a. m.

AN EXPRESSION OF APPRECIATION

I wish to take this opportunity to express my appreciation to the voters of Orland Park for the two remarkable expressions of confidence they have given me within a week's time by re-electing me as Director of the School Board by a record vote and again by re-electing me to the office of Police Magistrate by an even more remarkable vote. It is a pleasant thing to know that one has the confidence and approval of his fellow towns people and I can only add that I appreciate your testimonial and will endeavor in the future as in the past, to merit that confidence.

SHERMAN S. KNOX, Police Magistrate, Orland Park, Illinois.

John Klein will leave the first of next week on a business trip to Springfield.

MOKENA

MOKENA M. E. CHURCH
Harold C. Sandall, Pastor
Church school 10:30 a. m.
Evening Worship 7:00 p. m.

Our attendance at Church School is on the increase. Three new scholars have been enrolled. In order to meet the growing demands we are contemplating another class for juniors. Already we have secured a splendid teacher. Further announcement will be made next week.

In our devotional period we are trying to appreciate those things which speak to us of God. The last time we considered trees. Next Sunday we are studying grass.

In the evening worship the pastor will give the second of his series of sermons on Faith, entitled "Earning the Right to Believe."

The pastor has found Mokena to have a most congenial community of people. He is calling during the week-ends in just as many homes as possible. However, if you wish him to call, for any reason sooner than he otherwise might, just mail him a note. The address during the week is Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill.

Arbor Day was observed by the local school last Friday and trees were planted in the school yard of the new school. The school board members also took part in the exercises.

CANCEL FIRST BALL GAME

The first base ball game scheduled by the Mokena High school this year was with Braidwood, April 19, but Principal C. A. Lively got a letter last Tuesday morning calling off the game. Braidwood had two games booked for the same date, so the game with Mokena was called off. Another game is booked with Braidwood, but it may be called off also.

Since Mokena has no game for that day, Principal Lively is trying to match one with Manhattan. Such a game will probably be played at Mokena and it is hoped that the town people will take keen interest and give the home boys all the support they can.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Spiess and son Gordon, accompanied by Mrs. Spiess's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Schmuhl, all of Mokena, made a trip to St. Louis recently to visit Mr. and Mrs. Charles Snyder and Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Niethammer, formerly of Mokena.

During the absence of the Spiess family who returned Monday evening, the operation of the telephone exchange was in the hands of Dorothy Kraus, Christina Schmidt and Mildred Warning.

The famous movie "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" was presented at the St. Mary hall Sunday evening to a pleased and interested audience.

Mrs. Rose Moriarty, son Frances and daughter Grace who have been spending several months in California, returned Tuesday morning. A wonderful time is reported.

Mrs. Gilbert Homerding is on the sick list.

Last Wednesday night toward midnight there were two sudden loud explosions. The next morning the remains of aerial bomb were found back of the depot. Who discharged it and why is a mystery.

FRANKFORT

Mrs. Henry Breidert entertained the Frankfort Home Improvement Club in her home Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frolich attended the funeral of Mr. Frolich's aunt, Mrs. Anna Frolich, held in Joliet Monday afternoon, at Wunderlich Harris and Sontag Chapel. Burial was in the New Lenox Cemetery.

Mrs. Frolich died Saturday in the home of her daughter Mr. S. Batson in New Lenox Township.

Mr. and Mrs. William Folkers entertained their daughter, Mrs. Paul Clark and Children of Marseilles over the week end.

Adam J. Heisner was elected school director of the Frankfort Public school last Saturday. William Baumgartner term has expired. Mr. Baumgartner moved to Homewood last fall so he was not in the race. Mr. Charles Bobzin was also on the ticket and was defeated.

Mrs. Fred Woodcock and daughter Florence of Peotone, spent Monday here with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pfeiffer and family.

A number of Frankfort folks attended the dance given by Mr. Knight of Green Garden held in Peotone Friday evening.

Harold Pfeiffer left Tuesday for Aurora, to lay steel on the E.J. & E. R.R. with the gas electric rail layer.

Walter and Harold Cheney and Milton Pfeiffer started work at Mat-teson on the golf grounds.

Ed Warning, Arthur Eisenbrand and Gilbert Schmuhl all moved last Thursday.

FORMER BUICK DEALER IS NOW AIDE TO HOOVER

Arthur M. Hyde of Missouri is new Secretary of Agriculture

President Hoover's recent appointment of former Gov. Arthur M. Hyde of Missouri as Secretary of Agriculture, brings for the first time a man from the automobile industry to the cabinet of the nation's chief executive. Secretary Hyde has long been a Buick dealer at Trenton, Mo.

The appointee has established a remarkable record both in political circles and as a business man. Coming, as he does, from the very heart of the farm belt, Secretary Hyde, through his long association with problems confronting tillers of the soil, is especially qualified to meet the responsibilities connected with this highly important cabinet post.

Being the owner of three large farms in Missouri, Mr. Hyde has a first hand knowledge of the farm problem. The work confronting the new secretary will be largely of an administrative nature, and his automobile business experience will be of inestimable value in dealing with the ramifications of the farm question, because it, too, is essentially a business problem.

As a lawyer he administered to the farmers' legal needs; as a merchandiser of Buick cars his dealings with them brought him into even closer touch with their financial and domestic problems; as governor of Missouri he became the champion of their cause—and now as a member of President Hoover's cabinet he is to become instrumental in solving one of the most difficult situations confronting the American nation.

Secretary Hyde is an intensely active man. When he practiced law he was eminently successful. Law has always been his central activity, but as time went by he became increasingly interested in the automobile world as a dealer in Buick Motor cars. He has made a remarkable success of his automobile business, which he retained during his tenure of office as governor and in which he still has an interest.

FASHIONS

for the SMART WOMAN

SLIM SILHOUETTES

The surplus front is exceptionally modish and its use has always a slenderizing effect. The one-piece frock at the left shows a tailored trimness of line in the long roll collar, side-closing inverted pleats and the trimming lines to simulate pockets. Made in wool, tweed, jersey or flannel, the collar is smartest of plain material. Buttons add a color note.

For formal daytime wear the frock at the right is very smart and very slenderizing. The feature is the diagonal inset and circular flare at the left side. The soft blouse is achieved by inverted tucks at each side. The use of contrasting materials is a chic interpretation. At the diagonal neckline lace may be effectively used or the line may be plain.

A Romance of Braddock's Defeat

Of one thing I was positive, and I hold to that opinion today: General Braddock was convinced that whatever he won must be achieved by his personal efforts. I did talk with Mr. Shirley, the commander's secretary, who said he would make a verbal report of what I had learned while in Duquesne. Whether he ever did submit the information I brought, I cannot say, but I believe that he did because of this fear that the campaign was being mismanaged. I can easily imagine Braddock listening to my important information and giving it only a passing consideration, or else ignoring it entirely. That night the army camped at Rush creek, where Scarouady once had a village.

We were now within three easy marches of Duquesne, even though the army moved sluggishly; and I could not perceive any reason why we should not attain our objective. After all, I told Gist and Cromit, sickness and death was ever the price paid when a large body of men, more or less strangers to their environment, pass through a virgin country. I took it for granted that on every level battlefield of Europe sickness stalked every army.

Cromit had not much to say because of the bias furnished by his dream. Gist spoke guardedly and said that while some phases of the campaign were not to his liking still we ought to take the fort now we were committed to the Turtle creek course.

While we were talking Sir John St. Clair and several officers came along and St. Clair called out to us:

"You men must know this country. You will come along with us to reconnoiter."

We fell in behind them and were soon descending the steep bank that is a characteristic of the country's streams. Nor was the opposite bank any more inviting.

St. Clair studied the bank thoughtfully for a minute and then said to his officers:

"This is very bad. The army has lost heart because of rough travel. If the country beyond is as bad as this it will about finish any spirit that's left."

"It will be impossible to take the artillery and wagons any farther than this bank, Sir John, unless we spend much time preparing both banks," said one of the engineers.

"That is very plain," muttered St. Clair. "And that's the devil of it."

"If you can get your guns and wagons across, I can soon take you to a ridge that leads to Duquesne," spoke up Gist. "Once you are on the ridge, you won't have much trouble; and you'll find the country open and not fitted for ambushes, or surprise attacks."

As he was serving as guide to General Braddock and was well known in colonial affairs, his words were listened to. St. Clair suggested he try to find a more favorable crossing. He told them there was not much choice as the banks continued much the same, but he did lead them to where the approach to the creek was less difficult, and pointed out a thinly timbered elevation as being the ridge.

The chief engineering problem was to cross the creek and ascend the opposite bank. One young lieutenant said if he could have the use of a hundred soldiers, he could ease the wagons and guns down one slope and haul them up the other by means of the long cables carried by the army. Another, who had charge of the axmen, guaranteed readily to make runways of logs and thereby greatly expedite the passage of the guns and wagon-train.

Gist called on me to repeat what I already had told Mr. Shirley. I stated if the army would cross the creek and strike straight for Duquesne it could not be attacked with any degree of success even if the Indians could be induced to attack at all. I quoted Captain Beaujeu to that effect. As they did not cut me short I added, for good measure, that there would be great danger at both crossings of the Monongahela and that it would be practically impossible to avoid an ambush, that Beaujeu already had planned to plant an ambush along the river road.

Sir John seemed to be strongly impressed by my statements, much more so than he would have been had I made a similar talk at Alexandria, or Will's creek. When we returned to the camp, we fully believed the morrow's march would remove us from all fear of a masked attack. The conversation among the officers all pointed to this wise maneuver, and our spirits greatly improved.

After Sir John had talked with Braddock, Gist was sent for. Cromit and I left Round Paw holding a powwow with the few Delawares while we went to find the Dinwold girl.

Wagner Morgan was one of the first teamsters to arrive, despite the sad condition of his horses. He informed us that our little friend was sharing a kettle with two soldiers' wives. We soon located her. She had made her sex known to the women but still wore her masculine garb, which was very sensible of her. I took her aside for a little talk and at once observed she was in a sober mood. In fact, she seemed to be more downcast than when we were fighting for our lives in the Frazier cabin. I endeavored to cheer her up, and pointed out how thankful we should be for our deliverance from Pontiac's savages.

"That was the frying-pan," she sighed. "I tell you I feel bad luck, mister. They'll jump on us when we pass through the thick woods. Them soldiers don't know any more about Indians than as if they was so many cows."

"You shouldn't say such things. You'll take the heart out of the men if they hear you."

"I ain't a fool even if I come from a family of witches," she angrily retorted. "I'm talking to you, not to the soldiers." Then with instant repentance: "I didn't go for to speak to you like this, mister. But these women here are scared. And yet all they talk about is the silks and fine clothes they'll have when we march into Duquesne. You'll come and talk again with me tomorrow, mister? You've done so much for me."

"I'll talk with you. I've done nothing. You're hitching the cart ahead of the horse. If not for you, I never could have left the Duquesne stockade."

"I tell you it was the Injun who done all that."

"After you had told him of my danger and had planned for us to scale the water-gate and find you waiting with a canoe. I'll see you tomorrow, and the next day; and on the third day I'll see that you get some of the fine cloth—if the French don't burn everything before leaving the fort."

"I feel bad luck, but I'll hope for the best," she muttered. "And don't go into danger, mister."

The last was so incongruous after what we had been through together, and in view of the part I must play as scout, that I laughed and even she smiled, albeit a bit wistfully. She gave me her small hand and eyed me with strange steadiness; then disconcerted me by gravely saying:

"There ain't no shroud around you yet. I'm thinking you'll live through it."

Cromit came up in time to hear the last and anxiously inquired: "What about me, missy?" His mouth was smiling, but his eyes were uneasy.

She hesitated, then told him: "Anyone you come to grips with will die."

With this she abruptly left us and bustled herself at the fire.

We went to where the rangers were camping and looked for Colonel Washington, but he had not yet reported to Braddock. I did meet Captain Busby, however. He had lost much of his stoutness and was as lean and hard as a bound.

"Webster Brond, by all that's quaint!" he cried on recognizing me. And this time he was eager to clasp my hand. "I've looked for you all along this cursed march and through all the cursed days we've crawled and fiddled away the time. Lord! but I'm glad the Alexandria folks can't see what a rough-looking lot we are. Where have you been and what do you think we'll do next?"

I explained, and he declared my Duquesne trip displayed "damned" rare sportsmanship. I told him the worst of the campaign was over and that we would be free from Indian attacks after we had crossed the creek and taken to the ridge.

"A fight would be welcome," he testily replied. "It's this d-d crawling along, like a worm on a leaf, that takes the gimp out of the men. If you'd stayed with us from the time we quit Will's creek, you'd understand how trifles can eat the heart out of a man. Wood-ticks annoy more people than tigers do. Really, we officers of the Virginians have given up our luggage animals until we scarcely have anything left except what we have on. I hope there'll be some clean linen at Duquesne. If there isn't, I'll never forgive the French. I suppose the folks back home are thinking tonight that we're already in Duquesne."

There was no "back home" for me, no folks to learn how I had fared; and I had nothing to say. He ran on: "I've sent word to Josephine by every express, but probably she hasn't received one out of five of my letters. I told her I hadn't seen you. So you don't expect we'll be attacked by the red devils on our way to the fort?"

"Not if we follow the ridge road. Yes, if we follow the river road."

"Then I'm glad it's the ridge. Remember, Web, how we used to play at fighting Indians and always planned to run into an ambush and make a very narrow escape? Lord, that seems a million years ago. We didn't want any open ridge marching in those days. Nothing but bloody fighting in the shrubbery at the foot of the Carlyle gardens. And how we used to rescue fair maidens! How Joe would squeal, she was that nervous; and how cool and collected the Haze girls always were! Joe was more fun—she felt her part more. Web, our hearts were higher then than now. Time has made cowards of us—of me, anyway. And who would have believed that we would be here together like this on the shore of the d-d creek! Thank God that Joe isn't here to be rescued!"

"Amen to that!" And I wished and wished that the witch-girl was as safe as Josephine of old Alexandria.

He urged me to share mess with him and several others from the home town, but I was uneasy and preferred to take a piece of meat from the rangers' fire and to prowling deep in the woods for fresh signs until the darkness drove me in.

When the drums beat the long march on the morning of the seventh I turned out to assist in getting the wagons across the creek. But what was my amazement to learn that the course had been changed during the night's council, and that St. Clair had finally decided it would be best for the army to swing clear of the rugged country entirely and to march direct for the Monongahela.

This would necessitate crossing at a point where the river bends to the north, and after marching across the bend, to recross just below the mouth of Turtle creek. This shift in plans was due to the excellent fords and their gently sloping banks. There would be no difficulty in crossing the guns and wagons. Destiny was taking the Dinwold girl and me back to the Frazier cabin.

I hunted up the Onondaga and found him freshly painted for war and softly reminding his onrenda that he was a man of the Wolf clan. After finishing his chanting he cried out to me:

"Yo-hah! They say some very brave men will die before two more sleeps white brother. They say it is not good for men to grow old until they find all meat tough."

"The French will die bravely if they fight," I agreed.

"They say the French will not die alone. It will be a very strong fight."

"There will be no light unless Beaujeu can drive his Indians into making a surprise attack."

"There will be a fight," he gravely assured me. "Many axes will be covered with new paint (blood). They say the English from over the thinking water do not know how to fight."

"The Delawares have told you that. They talk like old women."

"A wolf howled in the night to the Wolf man," he corrected. "The talk of our nephews, the Leni Lenapes, goes by Round Paw's ears without entering. Let the witch-woman change herself into a bird and fly away."

"Let my red brother keep that talk shut up in his bag," I warned, secretly alarmed by his reference to the Dinwold girl. For should there be a fight with the fort Indians I feared she would refuse to hide in a wagon until it was over; and it did seem a cruel shame that after escaping from Frazier's cabin she should run the risk of being hideously killed within gun shot of it.

"Let her turn herself into a bird and fly back to the Susquehanna," he called after me.

I hastened on, eager to find the girl and persuade her to stay well back among the wagons. Even if we were ambushed and well-blooded she would be safe at the rear of the line. The savages could never break through even though they should punish the head of the army.

She greeted me shyly and was strangely willing to do as I asked. I was surprised and pleased with her acquiescence; for I knew she had but little thought for her own safety. There was, however, a small condition attached to her promise; and she expressed it thus.

America's Great Debt to Pioneer Mothers

Pioneer mothers played a great part in American annals. Following the ones they loved they made homes spring up in the wilderness. From helping to build the cabin, raising the little crops, weaving the clothes, down the long range of ceaseless toil which frontier life holds, they were co-workers with the men who gave America 48 states instead of 13. Leah A. Kazmark writes, in the National Republic.

Around the wide-mouthed fireplaces at night in the isolated cabins these mothers of America yesterday laid the foundation stones of Twentieth-century progress. Here they taught lessons before the coming of the schoolmaster; here they taught religion from the precious family Bible long before the steeples of white churches dotted the landscape. All the seeds of civilization they planted on each new frontier, as the men planted the wheat in the newly turned soil, drained the swamps and felled the forests. Toiler, mother, teacher, preacher—all these in one was a typical pioneer woman who furthered the cause of America.

Horses' Skulls "Amplifiers"

An old superstition that horses skulls improve the acoustics of music rooms is revived by the discovery in an English Seventeenth century manor house of between thirty and forty horses' skulls arranged under the floorboards. The house was that of a family of noted musicians.

There are many who encounter adversity, that are happy; while some, in the midst of riches are miserable; everything depends on the fortitude with which the former bear their misfortune, and on the manner in which the latter employ their wealth.—Tacitus.

VALUE OF CANDY IN DIET

Who knows better than the physical director of the youth as to the "freak diets" for the athletic girl? G. H. Heineman, of Philadelphia advocates following the natural appetite for a variety of foods. He says, "you can't build strong and healthy bodies on a diet that eliminates or appreciably reduces the essential energizing foods. The physical condition of a great many women who are struggling to attain a boyish figure at any price is proof of that. Their lack of stamina make them susceptible to sickness and fatigue, and it's a handicap to them in everything they do."

"They deprive themselves of sugar or some of the other carbohydrates in an effort to cut down on their daily consumption of calories, and what is the result? When they do without sugar and sweets they rob themselves of one of the most valuable of all the sources of human energy, and the joke of it is that sugar and sweets are no more fattening than any one of a score of other foods. If women would forget their dieting fads they'd not only be healthier and stronger, but a whole lot more attractive to look at."

So it is that youths' sweet tooth is accepted and school boards are authorizing the serving of candy at school, pointing out that regulation is wiser and more efficient than prohibition.

Many of our wisest health authorities now urge suitable provision for sweets, especially for growing children. It is far better for them to buy on the school grounds at the lunch hour or play hour than to carry the sweets with them to be eaten at the wrong time of the day.

Candy as dessert has been used by wise mothers for years, but candy in desserts is an entirely new wrinkle. Here are a few suggestions:

When preparing custards, junkets or blanc mange, drop a caramel or a few pieces of peanut brittle in the bottom of the cup before it is filled. When turned out the melted candy makes an attractive sauce for the custard.

Scalloped Apples With Peanut Brittle.—Spread thinly sliced apples over the bottom of a baking dish. Sprinkle with salt and cover with a layer of peanut brittle; add a little lemon juice and bake in a slow oven for an hour.

Seasonable Desserts.

Figs are one of the fruits which are so highly recommended as food. A few figs, stuffed or otherwise, with a handful of nuts will furnish a most satisfactory dessert. Here are other ways of serving them:

Fig Pudding.—Pour one-third of a cupful of milk over two and one-half cupfuls of soft bread crumbs. Add three well-beaten eggs, one cupful of brown sugar, one teaspoonful of salt and one teaspoonful of grated orange peel; mix all thoroughly and turn into a buttered mold and steam three and one-half hours. Serve with any desired sauce.

Fig Custard.—Scald one quart of milk. Mix two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch with one cupful of sugar and one-fourth teaspoonful of salt. Pour on the scalded milk slowly and cook in a double boiler twenty minutes. Add the yolks of three eggs slightly beaten and cook just long enough to set the egg. Cut a pound of figs into small pieces, put in a saucepan, add one-fourth cupful of orange juice, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and a little water, which is added and cooked with the figs before the fruit juices are added. When the figs are soft add to the first mixture and cool. Serve sprinkled with shredded almonds, cover with a meringue of the eggs or with whipped cream.

Rice Snow Balls.—Butter glass custard cups. Line them with cooked rice to the thickness of half an inch. Place in the centers one large stuffed fig, using nuts for the stuffing. Cover with rice and with buttered paper. Steam for half an hour in a steamer. Serve with sweetened cream or with a fruit sauce such as orange juice or pineapple, with a dash of lemon.

Fig Fritters.—Cut large pulled figs into halves, roll in dried macaroni crumbs, moisten with orange juice, place together in pairs, roll in flour, then dip into a fritter batter and fry a golden brown in deep fat. Sprinkle with sugar and serve at once.

Stuffed Egg.—Cream cheese adding a little cream to soften and stuff pulled figs with this mixture. Serve with crackers and coffee as the finish of a meal.

There is nothing in fish food to equal a well-cooked shad. If one could be grown with fewer bones we might enjoy them better, and on the other hand perhaps that is the reason we appreciate them; we taste each morsel so carefully.

Lesson for April 21

COMFORT FOR GOD'S PEOPLE

LESSON TEXT—Isaiah 40:1-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Love for Us.

JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Love for Us.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Secret of True Happiness.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Source of True Comfort.

I. God's Message of Comfort (vv. 1, 2).

1. It was addressed to Isaiah and his successors in office (v. 1).

He, as God's spokesman, was to make known the very heart of God to the people who were in great need of comfort. They were in a strange land, in captivity because of their sins. In spite of their apostasy from God—the breaking of their covenant with Him—His favor was about to return.

2. The mutual relation of God and His people (v. 1).

This is expressed in the phrases "my people" and "your God." The believer belongs to God, and God belongs to him. How blessed it is to be thus related to Him. Observe, this was said concerning a people who had sinned and backslidden.

3. Pardon received (v. 2).

In spite of their gross iniquity, their pardon was declared. The receiving of double at the Lord's hands does not mean that there had been undue infliction of punishment, but that the divine pardon exceeded the guilt. The period of the captivity was at an end. Their blessing was not through their own merit, but was to be realized through the sin offering of Jehovah.

II. The Preparation Required (vv. 3-5).

In order to secure the salvation which was to be theirs through the vicarious offering of Jehovah, it was necessary that certain preparation should be made. Observe:

1. The voice in the wilderness (v. 3).

This voice was that of John the Baptist, and actually was heard at the time of the coming of Jesus Christ (Matt. 3:1-3).

2. Prepare ye the way of the Lord. (v. 3).

It was the custom on state occasions for some one to go in advance of the king or ruler and make preparation for his coming. This preparation consisted of the actual depression of hills, the elevation of valleys and the straightening of crooked places, so that the monarch could move forward with ease and facility. In its moral bearing, the meaning is that preparation for the coming of the Lord into the hearts and lives of the people consists of the subjugation of pride and selfish ambition, and the straightening of the crooked and perverse things of this life.

3. The glory of the Lord revealed (v. 5).

When there is proper preparation of heart, the Lord will enter, and His glory will be revealed in the life. It primarily refers to the manifestation of the divine glory in the person of the Messiah.

III. The Frailty of Man in Contrast With God's Word (vv. 6-8).

"All flesh is grass and all the goodliness thereof is as the flower of the field. The grass withereth, the flower fadeth, because the Spirit of the Lord bloweth upon it. Surely the people are grass. The grass withereth, the flower fadeth, but the word of our God shall stand forever." Just as the blast of the hot wind scorches the grass and destroys the crops, so everything loved and prized by the natural man will wither and die under the blast of God's judgment, but His Word shall stand forever. The Word of God abides from age to age with perennial freshness. God's promise of ultimate triumph should steady us because no matter through what stress and strain we may be called to pass, when the Lord comes there will be victory.

IV. The Lord God Coming to Zion (vv. 9-11).

1. Behold Your God. (v. 9).

When He comes to Zion there will be no need of fear. This blessed truth can be proclaimed aloud to the cities of Judah.

2. The Lord God will come with a strong hand. (v. 10).

The hope of the world is in the coming of Jesus Christ in power and great glory to establish His blessed rule over the earth. Righteousness and peace can come only with the Messianic rule.

3. He shall feed His flock like a shepherd. (v. 11).

The Good Shepherd will search out and provide for His own.

Always Content

We shall be made truly wise if we be made content; content, too, not only with what we understand, but content with what we do not understand—the habit of mind which theologians call, and rightly, faith in God.—Charles Kingsley.

That We May Read Aright

God sometimes washes the eyes of his children with tears in order that they may read aright His providences and His commandments.—T. L. Cuyler.

Development of Radio

Made in Two Decades

In 1908 President Roosevelt was an actual listener to the wild demonstrations which greeted his name when he was nominated for the Presidency. Hanging ten feet above the heads of the delegates were four black disks which contained a combination of telephone and phonograph and, with the aid of this device, the President in the White House, holding the receiver close to his ear, was able to catch the words of Henry Cabot Lodge's nomination speech.

In 1928 the entire nation, through the advance made in the art of radio and the nationwide hookup by telephone wires, was able to hear the events as they took place in the convention halls at Kansas City and at Houston.—Telephone Press Service.

Sanitary

In the good old days one could eat anything and everything, without counting calories or vitamins or worrying about germs. But in this age of gang wars and hygiene it is different. The grownups still are inclined to rebel and backslide, but the children take to it naturally.

The other day two urchins paused at a hot dog stand and one said: "Gee, let's get a barbecued sandwich."

"No," said the other seriously, "I wouldn't let any one but a druggist put up a sandwich for me."

How to wear fine clothes can be taught. It is harder to teach how to be able to buy them.

MOKENA

The Mokena Masonic members met at the Mokena school house on Thursday night to talk over plans relative to organizing a local Masonic lodge.

The Mokena base-ball team will play Manhattan Friday at Schick's diamond. The team has not had very much practice, because the field has been flooded with water. The bad weather has probably kept Manhattan from practicing as well, so an even game should be expected. We hope to have a crowd at the game, and we think they will be satisfied even if we don't win. No admission will be charged and everyone is welcome.

Library; vases for manual training; an endowment fund.

These have been made possible by the co-operation of the entire organization, and I wish to thank at this time, our teachers, the officers and committees, also each individual member for their loyal support. I feel that our president elect will carry on the high moral standards of this organization, and I ask you to give her unlimited support. This is most important. It is not necessary for me to add that my work here has been a pleasure. I shall always be interested in this association and its group of workers. And now in closing, I want to present the school an ever-green tree, symbolic of life everlasting. I hope that as the roots of this little tree penetrate the bosom of mother earth, and the branches reach out to God's sunshine to promote growth, our organization may grow, expand and flourish in like manner.

Dedication of this tree took place on the school grounds on Arbor Day, Friday, April 12th with the participation of the school children.

The keen and active interest of the School Beautiful Committee, Chairman Mrs. Lulla Rogers, is responsible for the very pretty shrubbery recently planted about the school.
